

GO GREEN! WITH BETTER TEXTILE SOLUTIONS

Do your employees wash their uniforms at home? Do you have your own in-house laundry facility? If so, you're wasting:

- | Water
- | Energy
- | Natural Resources

Here's how a certified Clean Green uniform and laundry service can help you run a more sustainable business.

LESS WATER

Eco-friendly industrial laundry services reduce water usage by up to 30%.

That's 25 gallons of water per week per worker...

...or 300 billion gallons of water per year.

½ of the world's population could survive on that amount of water for an entire day.

Prudential's customers experience 61.8 million gallons of water saved per year over home laundering.

Prudential's customers experience a 34% water savings compared to home laundering.

We do it by:

Using fewer wash and rinse cycles.

Recapturing and reusing drained water.

Following eco-friendly management practices.

LESS ENERGY

Clean laundry services can reduce energy consumption by up to 35%.

We do it by:

Using high-capacity laundry loads.

Installing smart, innovative technology to boost efficiency.

Lowering the washing temperature.

Recovering heat from the laundry process.

Practicing preventative maintenance.

Prudential's customers experience a 34% energy savings and 48% total carbon dioxide emission savings compared to home laundering.

Prudential's customers experience saving enough energy to offset the average consumption of about 633 people, or to eliminate burning 9.7 million pounds of coal (or 825,708 gallons of gasoline) each year.

REDUCE WASTE

Every year, disposal napkins and towels waste:

- | 17 million trees
- | 2 billion pounds of landfill space

We do it by:

- | Using environmentally friendly detergents.
- | Removing solids and liquids from waste water.
- | Offering reusable textiles instead of disposable products.

LOOK FOR THE CLEAN GREEN CERTIFICATION STICKER!

Prudential Overall Supply was the first major industrial laundry chain in the world to earn TRSA's official Clean Green Certification. We continue to lead the way when it comes to sustainable practices.
